

Travelrific®

A blog for travel enthusiasts. Listen to our podcast at Travelrific® Radio, and visit our Wonderful Places® Travel Shop!

Mobility-Challenged Travelers Find Companions

June 23, 2008 at 6:57 pm · Filed under U.S. travel, international travel, travel and tagged: flying companions

By Linda Tancs

Mobility-impaired travelers can fret less about getting from point A to point B. Former airline professionals have taken on a second life as traveling companions for those with special needs. Their services include booking travel, handling airport transfers and keeping relatives informed of your progress on domestic and international flights. This service epitomizes the phrase, a friend in need is a friend indeed. Find them at www.flyingcompanions.com.

If you enjoyed this post, please share it on sites such as StumbleUpon, vote for it, or bookmark it. Thanks for your support! Travelrific® was featured as Blog of the Day on NJ.com!